

Medical Cost Projection – Certified (MCP-C) Guidelines

Who is FIG?

Established in 2002, incorporated in 2005, and trademarked in 2019, FIG Services, Inc. (FIG) is a family-owned corporation that specializes in assessing medical damages. FIG assists with the determination of future medical care and associated costs for an individual who has suffered an injury or illness that is involved in an insurance claim or lawsuit. Medical damages are demonstrated in the specialty practices of Life Care Planning, Medical Cost Projections, and Medicare Set-Asides.

We practice what we teach at FIG. Since 2008, FIG Education has also focused on educating and coaching others in these specialty practices. All of FIG's instructors and advisory board are practicing Life Care Planners. As we learn in the field, this knowledge is brought back into the classroom. FIG offers classes for initial certification and CEUs for renewal of certification. FIG has also created an interactive website – the Treehouse – to support the industry with resources, mentoring, and CEUs. Classes and CEUs are offered online, virtually, and onsite. In addition to education in Life Care Planning, Medical Cost Projections, and Medicare Set-Asides. FIG also provides knowledge and guidance with business development and marketing strategies, as most Life Care Planners own and operate their own businesses within the specialty industry.

In 2021, FIG created the Medical Cost Projection – Certified (MCP-C) certification to recognize the competency, and comprehensive learning, that has been achieved and is necessary to be qualified in a courtroom. Building on 20 years of experience in the courtroom and classroom, FIG's reputation has been well established in the industry. As such, FIG has become a cornerstone of wisdom and guidance in Medical Cost Projection. FIG's expectation is to continue to be excellent stewards in this profession. FIG stresses the importance of being qualified over being certified: however, we understand this badge (MCP-C) adds credibility when sitting in a courtroom. A certification with FIG declares the individual's successful completion of a curriculum in a specialty practice.

The purpose of the 'MCP-C Certification Guidelines' is to shed light on the application process (including the criteria and renewal), understand the focal point of the certification and principles of behavior, and provide answers to frequently asked questions.

FIG Advisory Board

FIG created an Advisory Board to act as collaborative, strategic thinking, sounding board to support FIG's education and certification endeavors in the medical damages industry. Members of the FIG Advisory Board are licensed or certified in their primary practice. They are actively practicing in the Life Care Planning, Medical Cost Projection, and/or Medicare Set-Aside fields. The FIG Advisory Board also includes members with backgrounds in business, marketing, and legal aspects which are crucial to these specialty practices.

The role of the FIG Advisory Board is not to make day-to-day decisions but rather to provide relevant knowledge, critical thinking, and skillful analysis to increase the confidence of the decision-makers who represent FIG. The board members are chosen for their expertise, connections, and passion for promoting the specialty practice of Life Care Planning, Medical Cost Projections, and Medicare Set-Asides. If disciplinary action is necessary to address any concerns, the FIG Advisory Board offers insight and impartial solutions following a thorough review and discussion of the issue.

MCP-C Principles

Principles are the ideals and practices that form a working belief system. Within Life Care Planning, our principles guide our work product and are an essential part of being a qualified and respected Expert Witness. The MCP-C principles guide us through what is right and wrong during practice. The following have been identified as MCP-C principles to guide Medical Cost Projections, but are not limited to:

- Abide by the laws and statutes of your primary practice – do not operate outside of your primary scope of practice.
- Maintain active and unrestricted license and/or certification in your primary practice.
- Represent the MCP-C credential in a positive manner and do not damage the integrity of the MCP-C credential.
- Do not engage in acts of omission to be dishonest, deceitful, or fraudulent in your MCP-C role.
- Do not misrepresent the MCP-C credential.
- Do not misrepresent your role to the referral source or client in which the service is being rendered.
- Do not establish a dual role or relationship with the referral source or client.
- Provide unbiased, objective, and neutral opinions regardless of the referral source or client's expectations.
- Primary obligation and responsibility are to the client in which the service is being rendered.
- Maintain integrity among colleagues, referral sources, and clientele.
- Do not operate on contingency fees or commission.
- Maintain confidentiality and integrity of the referral source and clientele during presentations and publications.

MCP-C Methodology

FIG has established a peer-reviewed, published methodology for the MCP-C credential. This methodology is based on 20+ years of experience in the Life Care Planning industry, along with a fusion of all perspectives in Life Care Planning. FIG is the only educational provider and certification which recognizes all backgrounds in the Life Care Planning industry. FIG's MCP-C Methodology is taught in the educational classes under certification, as well as in the continuing education classes.

FAQs

Do I need to be certified to prepare Medical Cost Projections?

Certification is not mandatory to do medical cost projections. If you prefer to work behind-the-scenes, certification can be used as a marketing edge to obtain assignments. If you prefer to work as an expert witness, certification is highly encouraged as it adds credibility in the courtroom. The most important fact is that you are qualified to determine medical cost projections. FIG Education affords you this benefit – to be qualified.

What are the benefits of being certified with FIG?

FIG's certification is evidence that you have mastered a complex body of specialized knowledge in the specialty practice of Medical Cost Projections. More importantly, FIG's credentials will give you a competitive edge over others with your demonstration of competency and comprehensive learning. FIG's certification allows national recognition of highly trained Medical Cost Projections, which enhances your credibility with referral sources and in the courtroom. Furthermore, FIG's credentials promote excellence and standardization of an authoritative methodology in the specialty practice of Life Care Planning.

How is FIG's certification different from other programs – why choose MCP-C?

FIG practices what it teaches and brings our years of experience into the classroom. FIG's Instructors and Advisory Board help carve out the knowledge needed to excel in the Life Care Planning field, both nationally and internationally. FIG's MCP-C certification focuses on creating a competent and qualified Medical Cost Projections that will withstand any challenges as an expert witness.

FIG's MCP-C certification is the only certification that recognizes the fusion of all perspectives in Life Care Planning. This combination of knowledge and experience in your primary practice, education and training in the specialty practice of Medical Cost Projections, and the MCP-C certification offers a competitive edge when marketing your services and brings credibility to the table when sitting in a courtroom. The MCP-C credential leans on FIG's authoritative reputation of 20 years in the Life Care Planning industry. FIG has numerous testimonies from all backgrounds in Life Care Planning to prove their worth – check out the website (FIGeducation.com) and social media sites.

What is the difference between being qualified and being certified?

The Merriam-Webster definition of 'qualification' is fit by training, skill, or ability for a special purpose. Synonyms for qualification include accomplished, certified, competent, disciplined, efficient, equipped, experienced, knowledgeable, licensed, proficient, and trained. The definition of 'certification' is to attest authoritatively, to attest as being true or as represented, or as meeting a standard. Certification also usually applies to a written statement, especially one carrying a signature. Synonyms for certification include approval, designation, choice, election, nomination, or selection. FIG's primary focus is on training the individual to be qualified in the specialty practice of Medical Cost Projections. The MCP-C certification does not supersede the qualification of the individual following the successful completion of a Medical Cost Projection certification class. The MCP-C credential declares the individual's successful completion of competency learning and comprehensive knowledge taught by FIG.

In 2014, the FDA News (fdanews.com) discussed the definitions of qualification vs. certification. "...We might say the words are almost identical in meaning, at least according to the dictionary. The only difference is that some type of written document may be associated with certification. So, if the definitions are similar, why the concern? One problem lies in the connotations associated with the terms, especially with regard to the perceived status conferred by the word "certification"... Unclear about the difference between qualification and certification? If so, you aren't alone..." Here are some comments on FDAnews.com:

"Qualification is done for a specific task; certification is done for a series of tasks."

"Qualification equals field training; certification equals classroom training."

"Qualification is an ongoing process; certification happens once."

Is FIG's certification accredited?

No, FIG's certification is not accredited. The certifications with alternate groups, such as CLCP, CCLCP, CNLCP, and CPLCP, are also not accredited. FIG's focus is on making sure the professional is adequately educated and trained to be considered a qualified expert witness. FIG's certification is an acknowledgment of your skills learned under FIG.

Is receiving my education and certification under one roof considered a conflict of interest?

No, FIG believes the combination of education and certification benefits the individual. Offering education and certification under one roof eliminates the confusion of the essential members, saves time during the transition between education and certification, and optimizes your financial investment.

Will FIG release information about my certification status?

FIG will release your certification status to a third party if you give permission in writing. NOTE – Test results and homework will not be released to a third party – only the certification status.

Can my certification be revoked?

Revocation of your certification is determined by the FIG Advisory Board, and the decision is final. Certification may be revoked for any of the following reasons, but not limited to:

- Breach of 'MCP-C Principles' listed above.
- Falsification of the certification or renewal application.
- Falsification of any information requested by FIG.
- Failure to maintain eligibility requirements.
- Failure to maintain an active license or certification in your primary practice.
- Failure to pay fees, default on or maintain current account payment status.
- Failure to participate in an investigation by the FIG Advisory Board if an accusation/grievance has been submitted.
- Misrepresentation of FIG's certification status.
- Violation of FIG's trademark policy.
- Violation of FIG's copyrights.
- Findings of unethical conduct including violation of state or federal laws, or unfair and unethical practices.
